

Meet the 14 Women of Influence honorees for 2017

Every year since 2004 the Business Journal has recognized women whose outstanding leadership has an outsized influence on the business community.

In all, 205 women have been honored as part of the Women of Influence program.

For the 14th edition of this awards program, we are honoring 13 leaders in a range of industries from technology to real estate to retail. Additionally, the Business Journal's Legacy Award will be given posthumously to Mary Gates, who was the first woman president of King County United Way and first to chair the national organization's executive committee. Gates, whose son is Bill Gates, died in 1994. For the full list of this year's honorees, click through the slideshow below.

Join the Business Journal on Thursday, Nov. 9 as we honor these women at the Hyatt Regency Bellevue. A special section with profiles of each honoree will be published Nov. 10 in the Business Journal. To see a list of the 191 Women of Influence honorees the PSBJ has named in previous years, click through the slideshow below.
